

Privacy Policy

T & W Earthmoving recognises that it is both necessary and required by law for the Company to store a variety of records of factual information about Employees, Sub-Contractors and Customers.

The Company accepts that the general principles of confidentiality and privacy apply to the use and availability of its records. Where information about a person includes personal details as defined by the Privacy Act 1988 (as amended), that person expects that the Company will maintain confidentiality, except where disclosure is required for legitimate and legal purposes.

T & W Earthmoving will not release any personal information to other than the regulatory sources without the written permission of that Employee or Sub-Contractor.
